HOW I USE NCS PROGRAMS TO HELP CLIENTS:

In dealing with change, organizations invest billions in new technology and training that fails to produce the desired results. The most common reason is a misunderstanding of HOW to produce change.

Once blockages inherent in "traditional" ways of working and thinking are removed, only then can we tap into an employee's unique potential.

When I help people realize their full potential through the latest advances in science, while releasing previous barriers, I help create a stronger organization now capable of achieving even more.

HOW I'VE HELPED CLIENTS USING NCS PROGRAMS:

Based on the work of Dr. Joe Dispenza, and grounded in the rapidly evolving field of neuroscience, our Change Your Mind...Create New Results (CYM...CNR) program has created breakthrough experiences for many companies and businesses throughout the world.

Whether your organization needs support in the areas of leadership development, improving employee engagement, creating a more positive culture shift, preparing your organization for change, reducing and converting toxic stress into healthy stress (yes, psychology tells us this is possible), or enhancing creativity and innovation, this training program is designed to evolve your organization.

Alexander has spent over two decades in the corporate environment as the owner of a business, top manager and lately as a consultant. It is this significant real-life, in-the-trenches business experience that has helped him to develop the ability to assist organizations to find solutions for the most pressing situations by opening them up to a broader perspective

His work reflects his passion for exploring how people can use the latest scientific findings to expand their inner potential.

"The course material is very clear & practical, making the next steps to incorporating changes in one's life so obvious. Alexander Senchenko facilitates the workshop with immense knowledge, openness and professionalism. He makes the material come alive and handles all questions thoughtfully and respectfully. I highly recommend this course."

changing organizations from the inside out

Change your mind... create new results.

"I can see visible changes... across the team which is reflected in the volume and quality of ideas generated and the results being delivered...our team is on track and focused to deliver against our vision and strategy.

– Marie St. Quinton, EMEAR Sales Enablement Team Manager, Cisco Systems

Organizations are realizing that employees are their greatest asset.

This workshop, developed by Dr. Joe Dispenza, neuroscientist and best-selling author, is an experience like none other. It is designed to help develop your staff into a creative, committed and fully-engaged team.

The "Change Your Mind...Create New Results" 8-hour workshop uses a dynamic combination of science, videos, and in-class practices to teach you how to maximize the most powerful tool available: your brain. As a result, participants will make significant shifts in perspectives and possibility thinking. These shifts translate into increased professional performance and collective organizational change.

With this workshop, and recommended group coaching, you will:

- Learn how the brain works and why this is important for change
- Set intentions for yourself and your organization, becoming more productive and less distracted
- Apply practices, based on neuroscience, to create pathways to new potentials becoming more open to new ideas and less stuck in the past
- Experience how to mentally rewire your brain to be more creative and trusting, less rigid and fearful

Dr. Joe Dispenza, a global lecturer, has worked closely with master trainers and curriculum design experts to create a program specifically designed to facilitate organizational change. Through a rigorous application, selection, and certification process, Dr. Dispenza has personally certified trainers to deliver this work.
